

Workshop: Pests and diseases of amenity trees

20 September 2006

The National Arboretum, Westonbirt, Gloucestershire

This one-day workshop covers many of the latest problems facing British trees, such as the increasing profile of the Phytophthora pathogen and horse chestnut leaf minor, and includes discussion of the potential threats posed by non-native pests and diseases, for example the Asian long horn beetle.

Speakers

Forest Research pest and disease experts Nigel Straw and David Rose

Benefits

The workshop will help you:

- ▶ Identify the various pests and diseases that threaten amenity trees
- ▶ Spot problems earlier
- ▶ Update your knowledge of incoming non-native pests and diseases
- ▶ Be better prepared to manage pests, diseases and other environmental stresses on amenity trees

Who should attend?

Anyone who plants, cares for or works with amenity trees, especially tree officers, arboricultural practitioners and surveyors/consulting arborists.

Itinerary

9:00 am – 4:00 pm (approx)

The workshop comprises morning presentations from the speakers and an afternoon practical session in the local arboretum. Please bring outdoor clothing in case of poor weather conditions.

Refreshments will be provided, including a cold buffet lunch.

Directions

Westonbirt Arboretum is less than 20 mins from junction 18 of the M4 or junction 13 of the M5. See over for map.

Booking

Places cost £80 for ISA members and £110 for non-members. Numbers are restricted to 30 delegates, so please book early.
