Welcome to

Hafren Forest
and the source of the River Severn

The forest takes its name from Afon Hafren (River Severn) which begins quietly in a squelchy peat bog on Pumlumon, Mid Wales' highest mountain. In no time at all it becomes a torrent with falls and cascades plunging headlong through the forest. Our waymarked forest walks enable you to enjoy this beautiful river. An exciting new circular route to the Source of the Severn has just been finished. The outward leg of this new trail forms the beginning of the Severn Way, Britain's longest riverside walk at 210 miles. Another benefit of the new route is that the Wye Valley Walk, also now begins at the car park and heads out of the forest past the Source of the Wye, which also lies on Pumlumon. The ambitious walker can follow the route all the way to Chepstow. Other much shorter walks cater for all abilities. An amazing array of birdlife can be seen in the forest including the river feeding Dipper, the majestic Red Kite and if you are very lucky, the elusive Goshawk.

Enjoy Your Visit
