

Disgusting Forest Facts!

Dung beetles lay their eggs in animal poo.

Squirrels don't just eat nuts and seeds,
they also eat baby birds.

Badgers have their own special toilet sites called latrines.

Woodlice and rabbits eat their own poo.

The stinkhorn fungus looks rather rude and smells disgusting.
The smell attracts flies which help to spread the stinkhorn's spores.

The eggs of some flies are laid into living caterpillars. As the eggs hatch, the caterpillar is eaten away alive by the fly larvae.

Male spiders have 2 'willies' - on top of their head!

Deer have smelly feet. Special scent glands help deer to mark their trails.

If a frog or newt loses a leg, it can grow a new one,
but it does take a while.

Woodlice breathe through their armpits.
